FROM OUR PASTOR

Pastors and laypeople across the country are all grappling with the question, "What is the future of the church in America?" Clearly, change is in the air. Every denomination in the country is now in decline. The number of people who are unaffiliated with a church is dramatically increasing, especially among young adults. More and more people of all ages are dissatisfied with status quo church life. Large numbers of people identify themselves as "spiritual but not religious." The fastest growing religious group in America is now the religiously unaffiliated. There is no longer any doubt that the old institutional way of doing church in America, which worked so well for so long, is not working anymore. Although efforts are being made to recalibrate the old ways, they are unlikely to turn things around.

That does not mean I'm worried about the Church. I'm not. Jesus said the gates of hell will not prevail against God's Church. For example, although the church is in decline in the United States, it's exploding in other parts of the world. And even in America, people will always want and need Christian community and worship and a place to serve God and others. However, in the years ahead, the American church, if it wants to be vital and relevant, will have to reinvent itself, as the Church has done throughout the world over the centuries. Although the changes will make many of us uncomfortable, they also bring the possibility of adding new life and passion to Christ's church.

I don't have a crystal ball about the future of the American church. But significant changes are already in motion. In her fascinating book, "Christianity After Religion," Diana Butler Bass lists numerous trends on the horizon. For example, Bass believes that American churches will become:

- Less institutional and more organic.
- Less focused on programs and more focused on spiritual practices.
- Less inward focused and more outward focused.
- Less bureaucratic and more locally nimble.
- Less clergy dominated and more lay led.
- Less exclusive and more inclusive.
- Less concerned with buildings and more concerned about advancing the kingdom of God.
- Less concerned about doctrinal details and more concerned about experiencing God and serving others.
- Less concerned about church membership and more concerned about building authentic Christian community.

Another way to put it is that the Church of the future will be less of a religious institution and more of a spiritual movement. If Diana Butler Bass is correct, the future of the American church will be closer to the spirit of Jesus and the early church than we are now, which will be good news indeed. But the changes won't come easily or quickly, and many churches will resist them. But like it or not, the American church is changing along with our country. It will be interesting to see what God does with us in the decades to come!

Finally, it was good to receive Jim and Judy Duncan and Kelly and Suzie Perdue as new members. Welcome to our church family.

CARING CORNER

PRAYER TEAM

And pray in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests. With this in mind, be alert and always keep on praying for all the Lord's people.
~ Ephesians 6:18

Intercessory prayer is a form of prayer that opens the doors of our hearts so that God can listen to our concerns for others. It's an honor and a privilege to carry one another to God in prayer. Many verses of scripture lead us to praying for one another and even for ourselves. You may have the gifts that draw you toward praying for others.

A prayer team is in the process of forming at FUMC. Each week we will pray for one another with a special emphasis on those who are on the weekly prayer list published in the Sunday bulletin. While this list is always changing, there are those who choose for any number of reasons not to have their names published on this prayer list.

The prayer team will meet weekly to pray for our church, the prayer list, and for those who request prayer through Sunday school or the church staff. For more information or to volunteer, please contact Noel Poston, 526-2177.

STEPHEN MINISTRY HOSTS SPEAKER

The Stephen Ministry will host guest speaker Dr. Sam Barnes on the topic of opioid addiction on Thursday, November 16, at 6:30 p.m., in Jeff Wall Hall. Everyone is invited to attend this timely discussion. Refreshments will be served.

SURVIVING THE HOLIDAYS

For many, the holidays are a time of great anticipation and excitement. Some who are facing the holidays without their loved one may also experience feelings of anxiety and dread.

Our GriefShare ministry invites you to a time of support, encouragement, and advice on "surviving the holidays". You are not alone. Join us Saturday, November 4, from 9 a.m.—noon in Jeff Wall Hall for GriefShare's "Surviving the Holidays". Refreshments will be served.

BOO BASH

Boo Bash is in desperate need of candy - a lot of candy! Thanks to our generous volunteers, we currently have enough cars for this event, but still need 200 more pounds of candy. This is a very important event for our community, and our congregation has always been so faithful and generous in making this event possible. Thank you! As you are shopping would you please consider buying candy for Boo Bash? If you're running short on time, the church office is accepting cash donations to purchase candy. Please have candy donations to the church by October 27 so we can be sure to have enough for Boo Bash.
